Astigmatism What is it and Who does it Affect?

Astigmatism is a condition of the eyes where vision can become blurry or distorted. Blurry sight from astigmatism usually occurs in vision at all distances. In mild cases of astigmatism you may experience headaches, eye strain, fatigue, and certain angles of vision may be blurred. Astigmatism is considered to be a condition not a disease and is very common. In fact most people who have astigmatism were actually born with it.

Almost everyone has some degree of astigmatism but it is often not prominent enough to require any corrective action. In the cases where astigmatism is prominent there is ways to correct it. There are now contact lenses that are much more comfortable than the previous rigid contact lenses. Depending on the severity of your astigmatism there refractive surgery might also be a corrective option. Mild astigmatism symptoms you may experience headaches, fatigue, eye strain and some blurred vision at certain angles but not all. Because mild astigmatism is difficult to detect, having routine eye care exams is important.

Family Vision Centers complete eye exams also include certain tests to detect for astigmatism. If astigmatism is detected it can usually be corrected with properly prescribed fitted lenses. Eye glasses, or in some cases corrective surgery can also correct astigmatism problems. Schedule an appointment with your Family Vision Centers optometrist to discuss which option would be best suited for you and your condition.

Focus Dailies has come out with a new contact lens that will deliver all day comfort. The new Focus Dailies contact lens is available with AquaRelease. With AquaRelease every time you blink a moisturizer is slowly released into the tear film where it lubricates the lens providing all day comfort. The Focus Dailies with AquaRelease are designed to be worn for one day and then thrown away before you go to bed.

The moisturizer used in AquaRelease is polyvinyl alcohol also known as PVA. PVA is water based and is found in most of the eye drops on the market. Focus Dailies have always had a small amount of PVA in their lenses but now they are adding 5 times the amount to the AquaRelease lenses providing maximum eye comfort.

Another benefit of Focus Dailies AquaRelease is that they are designed for one day use. These daily contact lenses allow you to not worry about always cleaning your lenses, you just throw them away at the end of the day.
